With this option, your data augmentation will happen on device, synchronously with the rest of the model execution, meaning that it will benefit from GPU acceleration.. Note that data augmentation is inactive at test time, so the input samples will only be augmented during fit(), not when calling evaluate() or predict().. If you're training on GPU, this is the better option.

CERO has been criticized for being more strict on content in games when compared to other rating boards, a recent example being The Last of Us Part II. Despite receiving a Z (Ages 18+ only) rating, which is the maximum rating a game could receive from CERO, it was still censored with an example being the game's sexual content, where a sex scene ...

A few bugs I found: 1. Softlock at Bridge (Attack over edges to launch out of bounds) I happened to stumble upon a softlock. At the big bridge you can attack over the edge to get a leaping attack, but you get sent flying so far that there's no respawn trigger, so you keep falling forever (well I only stuck around for about 1 min before got fed up).
